with the corresponding proportions for last year, as seen on Tables I. and II., a falling off is found in each case.

The excess of births over deaths is 52,075.

BIRTHS.

132,178 births were registered during the year throughout Scotland, which gives a birth-rate of 2·95 per cent., or 295 for every ten thousand of the population as estimated. Of these, 67,767 are of the male sex, and 64,411 of the female.

From Tables IV. and V. it is seen how these are distributed throughout the five primary Registration districts. In the Principal Town districts the registered births are 56,540, being in the proportion of 3·04 per cent. of the estimated population in the same: the males 28,871, the females 27,579. In the Large Town districts they are 19,032, at a rate of 3·20 per cent. of the inhabitants: males 9799, females 9233. In the Small Town districts they total to 29,141, giving a birth-rate of 3·06 per cent.: males 14,941, females 14,200. In the Mainland-Rural districts the number is 24,980, a rate of 2·61 per cent.: males 12,868, females 12,112. In the Insular-Rural districts the births number 2575, giving a birth-rate of 2·15 per cent. of the population: males 1288, females 1287. These proportions show the highest birth-rate to be in the Large Town districts, followed in order by that in the Small Town districts, Principal Town districts, Mainland-Rural districts, and Insular-Rural districts.

Of the whole births, 8301 are illegitimate, equal to 6·3 per cent. of the total. This rate varies in each district, being 8·3 per cent. in the Mainland-Rural districts, 6·2 per cent. in the Principal Town districts, 5·7 per cent. in the Small Town districts, 5·1 per cent. in the Insular-Rural districts, and 4·8 per cent. in the Large Town districts.

Table VI. indicates the proportion of illegitimate births in every hundred births as occurring in the divisions and counties of Scotland. The highest rate falls in those counties which form the North-Eastern division, 11·4 per cent., followed by the Southern division with 10·8 per cent., the East Midland with 6·6 per cent., the Northern with 6·5 per cent., the counties the rate is above 10·0 per cent., the higher occurring in Aberdeen, 11·3 per cent., in Elgin and Banff, each with 12·9 per cent., and Wigtown with 13·7 per cent.

Of the total 132,178 births registered during the year, 67,767 were boys and 64,411 girls, so that the proportion of the former is to that of the latter as 105·2 is to 100—a proportion which varies in each district, the highest being in the Mainland-Rural districts, where for every 100 girls 106·2 boys were born, the lowest being in the Insular-Rural districts, 100·1 to 100.

Births were registered daily throughout the country month by month as follows:—392 during April, 385 during July, 380 during May, 371 during June, 362 during October, 357 during February and March, 356 during September, 354 during January, 353 during August, 341 during November, and 337 during December.

DEATHS.

80,103 deaths were registered in Scotland during the year: males 40,241, females 39,862—together giving a mortality rate of 1·79 per cent., or 179 in every ten thousand of the estimated population.

The rate in each district is:—The highest—200 per ten thousand of population—occurred in the Principal Town districts, followed by the Large Town districts with one of 175, the Small Town districts with one of 168, and the two Rural districts each with one of 153.

MARRIAGES.

31,360 marriages were registered in Scotland during 1901, giving a marriage rate of 70 in every ten thousand of the population as estimated.

This rate is 86 in like proportion in the Principal Town districts, 71 in the Large Town districts, 64 in the Small Town districts, 48 in the Mainland-Rural districts, and 38 in the Insular-Rural districts.

The number of marriages reported to the Registrars each month was 902 during May, 1637 during February, 1678 during March, 1896 during August, 1911 during October, 1996 during November, 2281 during September, 2546 during April, 3625 during January, 4071 during December, 4080 during July, and 4737 during June.

EIGHT OF THE PRINCIPAL TOWNS OF SCOTLAND.

The remarks which follow refer to the Births, Deaths, and Marriages which occurred during the year under review in the following Eight Principal Towns, viz.:—Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dundee, Aberdeen, Paisley, Leith, Greenock, and Perth, the information upon which they are founded being furnished by periodical returns sent by the Registrars of the same; and as about 37 per cent. of the inhabitants of Scotland reside in these towns, it is believed that the statements made regarding their condition afford a tolerably accurate indication of the same in the neighbouring districts.

The estimates of population used in the present Report are based upon the numbers enumerated at the Censuses 1891 and 1901, and are therefore more accurate than the estimates given in several previous Annual Reports, which were necessarily founded upon the numbers enumerated in 1881 and 1891. In those Tables where possible the proportions given for the various events during each of the previous ten years have been re-calculated from the new Census data.

BIRTHS IN THESE EIGHT TOWNS.

49,227 births were registered in these towns during the year, giving a birth-rate of 297 in every ten thousand of their population as estimated. The highest rate occurs in Glasgow and in Leith, in each of which it is 317 per ten thousand, followed by Aberdeen with one of 310, Greenock with one of 298, Paisley with one of 296, Dundee with one of 291, Edinburgh with one of 249, and Perth with one of 233.

Of the total births, 45,958 were legitimate and 3269 illegitimate—i.e., 6·6 of the latter in every hundred births. The largest proportion of illegitimate births occurred in Dundee, 9·1 per cent. of all being of this nature, followed by Aberdeen with 8·3 per cent., Edinburgh with 7·1 per cent., Perth with 6·4 per cent., Glasgow with 6·3 per cent., Leith with 4·6 per cent., and Paisley and Greenock each with 4·5 per cent.

Table VIII. also shows the proportion of illegitimate births registered during the year to the possible mothers—i.e., spinsters and widows between the ages of 15 and 45—estimated to be living in these towns. Aberdeen comes first with 1·64 per cent. of such, followed by Dundee with 1·55 per cent., Glasgow with 1·47 per cent., Leith with 1·27 per cent., Greenock with 1·14 per cent., Edinburgh with 0·99 per cent., Perth with 0·95 per cent., and Paisley with 0·85 per cent.

Of the total children born in these towns during the year, 25,202 were of the male sex and 24,025 of the female, so that for every 100 of the latter there were born 104·9 of the former.

DEATHS IN THESE EIGHT TOWNS.

33,351 deaths were registered as occurring in these towns during the year, equivalent to a mortality rate of 201 in every ten thousand of the inhabitants as estimated. The male deaths were 16,974, the female 16,377. This rate is highest in Glasgow, where 212 in every ten thousand of its population died during the year, followed by Dundee with 211 in like proportion, Greenock with 195, Edinburgh with 194, Paisley with 186, Aberdeen with 182, Leith with 177, and Perth with 173. When these rates are compared with the corresponding for last year (Table IX.), it is seen that in Edinburgh, Leith, and Greenock they are somewhat higher for the present year, being the same in Dundee, and lower in Glasgow, Aberdeen, Paisley, and Perth. When a further comparison is made between 1901 and the mean of the preceding ten years, it is found that the death-rate during the former is less in each town with the exception of Edinburgh and Dundee than in the corresponding for the longer period.

Table X. affords some information as to the mortality among children under five years of age in these towns. The total number of deaths at this age is 12,424 out of an estimated population of 201,629 of the same years, which gives a death-rate of 61 per thousand. In Dundee the rate is 70, in Glasgow it is 67, in Edinburgh it is 59, in Greenock it is 55, in Leith it is 54, in Aberdeen it is 52, in Paisley it is 48, and in Perth it is 36. When the mortality is calculated to the total deaths, as is done in the last column, it is seen that in every hundred deaths in Leith 40·0 were of children under five years of age, in Glasgow the percentage was 39·9, in Dundee it was 38·5, in Greenock it was 36·1, in Aberdeen it was 35·1, in Paisley it was 33·6, in Edinburgh it was 32·5, and in Perth it was 22·8.

Tables XI. and XII. give the percentage of deaths from various diseases in these towns, the former Table computed with reference to the population, the latter to the total deaths from all causes. In the Eight Towns together the mortality rate is 2·013 per cent. of the inhabitants as estimated. The rate varies in each town from 2·119 per cent., the highest, in Glasgow, to 1·730 per cent., the lowest, in Perth. The death-rate from Zymotics in those towns collectively is 0·311 per cent. of their population, and equal to 15·44 per cent. of the total deaths in the same. The highest Zymotic death-rate is in Glasgow, where 0·364 per cent. of the inhabitants succumbed to those diseases, in Dundee the rate is 0·324 per cent., in Edinburgh it is 0·290 per cent., in Leith it is 0·277 per cent., in Paisley it 115 Old Persons died in the Eight Towns during the year at ages of 90 or upwards, 36 men and 79 women. The oldest were all females, two being respectively 101 and 100, two 99, one 98, and four 97 years.

MARRIAGES IN THESE EIGHT TOWNS.

14,578 marriages were registered in these towns during the year, being at a rate of 88 in every ten thousand of the population. The rate in Glasgow was 93 in like proportion, in Edinburgh 91, in Dundee 80, in Aberdeen 89, in Paisley 77, in Leith 72, in Greenock 74, and in Perth 80. (Table VIII.)

WEATHER AND ITS INFLUENCE ON THE MORTALITY.

The following remarks on the weather of the year are extracted from the Notes made by Dr. Buchan, under the Council of the Scottish Meteorological Society, which appear in the Registrar-General's Monthly Reports:—

January was characterised by a mean barometric pressure a little above the average, with a monthly range a little under it; a mean temperature nearly the average, with a mean daily range half a degree under it; an average mean humidity; a mean rainfall fully an inch less than the average, falling one day more than the average; a large preponderance of south-easterly winds, blowing with the average force of the month.

February was characterised by a high mean barometric pressure, with a monthly range a little under it; a mean temperature two degrees under the average, with a mean daily range half a degree above it; a mean humidity a little less than the average; a mean rainfall little more than half the average, and falling on three days fewer than the average; an eight days' excess of northerly and north-westerly winds, blowing with a force less than has been recorded since 1891.

March was characterised by a rather low barometric pressure, with an unusually large monthly range, greater indeed than any recorded since 1876; a mean temperature and a mean daily range both rather under the average; a mean humidity less than the average; a mean rainfall considerably less than the average, falling one day more than the average; and a large excess of northerly and easterly winds, blowing with a force greater than in any March since 1883.

April was characterised by a low barometric pressure, with a monthly

Tables XIII. and XIV. show some points regarding the meteorological conditions of the year, and the mortality among the inhabitants of Scotland which occurred during each month of the same, with, for the sake of comparison, corresponding information for the mean of the ten years, 1891-1900. The months of January, February, and December are those with the lowest mean temperature, that of February and December being below that for the same months of the ten years. The mean temperature for the whole year is slightly above that for the longer period, the mean temperature for six of the months of 1901 being above that of the corresponding months of the ten years. The actual mortality is greater during the early and late months—the colder months—than during the intervening, those of summer and autumn.

dealt with, are noted in connection with the principal meteorological phenomena of the year. The daily deaths were most numerous during February and April, becoming gradually less frequent until June, rising again in July, and falling until September, when they are at their minimum, after which they again gradually increase.

Smallpox caused 205 deaths during the year (there were 42 during 1900), 36 being registered in January, 57 in February, 74 in March, 26 in April, 6 in May, 4 in June, and 2 in July, there being none in the remaining months.

The deaths from Measles were most frequently registered during November and December, least so during September.

Deaths from Scarlet Fever appear most prominently during July, being also high during October, November, and December.

Hooping Cough was the most fatal epidemic during the first half of the year, the deaths then falling gradually until November, again rising in December.

Diphtheria is most fatal during the first and last three months of the year, least so during July, August, and September, much the same being the case with Croup.

Plague caused one death in Glasgow during October.

Fevers attain their maximum mortality during January and the three last months of the year, their minimum occurring during April, May, June, and July.

Diarrhœal deaths are registered in largest numbers during July, August, September, and October, the greatest mortality being 281 in August; the lowest, 35 in March.

The deaths from Phthisis were most numerous during January, April, and May, least so during September and October.

The mortality from the more acute Affections of the Respiratory System, as Bronchitis and Pneumonia, may be noted to be specially affected by climatic conditions, inasmuch as by far the largest number of deaths registered from those occur during the early or late months of the year—the winter months—the smallest number falling to the warmer months of summer and autumn. The same occurs with Heart Affections and some Diseases of the Brain, and that especially among those over middle life, in many of whom these same organs are frequently in an unsound condition.

Tables XVII. and XVIII. exhibit the relative mortality among the inhabitants of the aforesaid towns divided into four classes according to age.

Children under 5 years of age died in largest proportion in April, August, November, and February; in least, during June and September.

Adolescents, aged between 5 and 20 years, died in largest number during April, May, and November, least so during January and July.

Among Adults, between 20 and 60 years of age, the largest mortality occurred during January, February, and April, the smallest during August, September, and October.

The deaths among the aged, of 60 years and upwards, were most numerous during the first four months and the last of the year, least so in August, September, and October.

The general mortality among the residents of those same towns was greatest during April, gradually falling during February, January, December, March, November, May, July, August, October, June, and September.

THIRTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT

ON THE

VACCINATION OF CHILDREN

BORN IN SCOTLAND DURING 1900.

The Vaccination Returns for the year 1900 show that of the 131,471 children whose births were recorded in Scotland, 111,487, or 84·800 per cent., were successfully vaccinated. Certificates of postponement were granted in 2367 cases, being at the rate of 1·800 per cent. of the total births; 435 children, or 0·331 per cent., were certified as insusceptible of vaccination in consequence of some constitutional peculiarity; and 450, or 0·342 per cent., from having been successfully vaccinated, but by persons not authorised to grant certificates to that effect. No cases were returned as insusceptible from the children having had Smallpox. 13,070, or 9·941 per cent. of the children born, died before vaccination; and 3662, or 2·786 per cent., were removed from the district in which they were born, or from some other cause were unaccounted for. When these percentages are compared with the averages for the ten previous years, it is found that the number of cases successfully vaccinated, of postponement, and of constitutional insusceptibility are below, while in all others the numbers are above, the average.

In Table XX. the proportions are given to the total number of living children, those who died before vaccination being deducted. From this Table it is seen that of the 118,401 children alive at the age of six months, 111,487 were successfully vaccinated, being at the rate of 94·161 per cent.; in 2367 cases, or 1·999 per cent., vaccination was temporarily postposed under medical authority; 435 children, or 0·367 per cent., were constitutionally insusceptible of the vaccine disease; 450, or 0·380 per cent., were insusceptible from having been previously successfully vaccinated; and in 3662 cases, or 3·093 per cent., the children were removed from the place of birth and lost trace of, or from some other cause were not accounted for.

Table XXI. shows the number of deaths from Smallpox in Scotland during each year from 1855 to 1899, the numbers given for 1900 and 1901 being those which occurred in eight of the Principal Towns only.

* The actual number of Districts is 1072—many Parishes and Burghs having been divided into two or more Districts for the purpose of Registration. Thus Edinburgh and Glasgow, to each of which only a single number is assigned in the Tables, consist of 6 and 14 Districts respectively. In forming the alphabetical arrangement the principle adopted has been to place compound names in the order in which they are pronounced.
